GETTING AROUND

From the Airport

Glasgow Airport is served very well by public transport with a variety of options for those wishing to head for the city centre.

For more information on travelling to and from the airport please visit the following link:

www.glasgowairport.com/im-departing/getting-here

Public Transport

Glasgow operates a large public transport system including many bus services, overground rail network and an underground Metro system.

OUT AND ABOUT

Food & Drink

There isn't too much choice around Celtic Park for food and drink as it is located in a rather quiet area. Other than a handful of pubs around Gallowgate, the most popular eating and drinking venues are likely to be in the City Centre.

The Merchant City area in the east of the centre is conveniently located for social gatherings. The stadium is just a short bus or train away from here or even a walk. Other nightlife areas are around Sauchiehall Street and Bath Street in the city centre, or in the West End - an area densely packed with shops, restaurants and bars.

THE HISTORY

England 3 – 2 Scotland
14 August 2013
Wembley Stadium (80,485)

Debutant Rickie Lambert was England's hero at Wembley, heading home the winner in their first meeting with Scotland in 14 years.

Lambert had only just come on before he crashed home a 70th-minute header to seal an important victory over the Three Lions' oldest rivals.

Scotland were terrier-like in the opening exchanges, keen to make the most of this return to Wembley Stadium and replicate their win in 1999.

Scotland were not overawed - certainly not with one whole corner of the stadium getting noisily behind them - and the sound level rose tenfold when James Morrison smashed them in front.

An eleventh-minute corner from the right was only half-cleared as it fell kindly to the West Bromwich Albion midfielder. Morrison was given too much time after his first touch and from 20 yards unleashed a rocket through the crowd that Joe Hart just could not quite get hold of, and the ball spun into the net.

Hodgson's men were struggling to find a rhythm as passes were going astray, but they managed to carve out a great opportunity when Wayne Rooney laid off to Tom Cleverley arriving into the box. The midfielder's first effort was saved by Allan McGregor before he stumbled on the rebound.

It was a positive sign for England, though, and moments later – with Gordon Strachan's side down to ten men as Grant Hanley received treatment - Cleverley released Walcott running towards Scotland's area.

The Arsenal forward steadied to shoot but cut inside Steven Whittaker and tucked past McGregor with his left to level things up with half an hour played.

Wayne Rooney was unfortunate not to give the Three Lions a half-time edge as they enjoyed their best period of the game, when he thought he had beat the offside trap and turned the ball home. But the assistant referee's flag was raised early, denying the Manchester United man.

At the break, Hodgson made one change, swapping Wilshere for Frank Lampard. It was the Chelsea man's 98th appearance for England.

He had little time to get into the match, though, and Scotland were back in front thanks to a fabulous strike from Kenny Miller. A cross from James Forrest on the right was controlled well on the chest of the Vancouver Whitecaps forward on the edge of the area.

With his back to goal and Gary Cahill at close quarters, Miller shimmied one way, then another to create a yard of space before turning and smashing low beyond Hart's dive.

The Tartan Army were up again, bouncing in their corner in celebration as they took hold of the game once again. But their grip did not last long as Welbeck headed England back on terms.

THE HISTORY

A deep free-kick from Gerrard found Welbeck well-placed on the penalty spot just behind his marker. The United striker connected well, directing powerfully down and inside the post giving McGregor little chance.

Rooney then made way for Lambert, brought in by Hodgson for his first call-up aged 31, and he capped an already dream week with the winner.

Leighton Baines sent in an out-swinging free-kick and the movement of the England newcomer was perfect, losing his man before directing a solid header inside the post with McGregor rooted.

It was clear that it meant the world to Lambert as he peeled away in delight. Only four years ago he joined Southampton in League One, so the journey has been one of fairytales.

England Team:

GETTING TO THE STADIUM

Bus

Buses 43 and 64 take you from the city centre to the ground. Take the bus on Ingram Street, and get off on London Road. Both buses run about every half an hour, and the journey takes roughly 30 minutes.

Buses 61 and 62 pass the stadium on Gallowgate Road, just slightly further away. Both leave from Glasgow's Central Rail station.

Train

Supporters can take a train from Glasgow Central to Dalarnock or Bridgeton rail stations (5 minute journey). Both stations are about 10 to 15 minutes walking distance from Celtic Park.

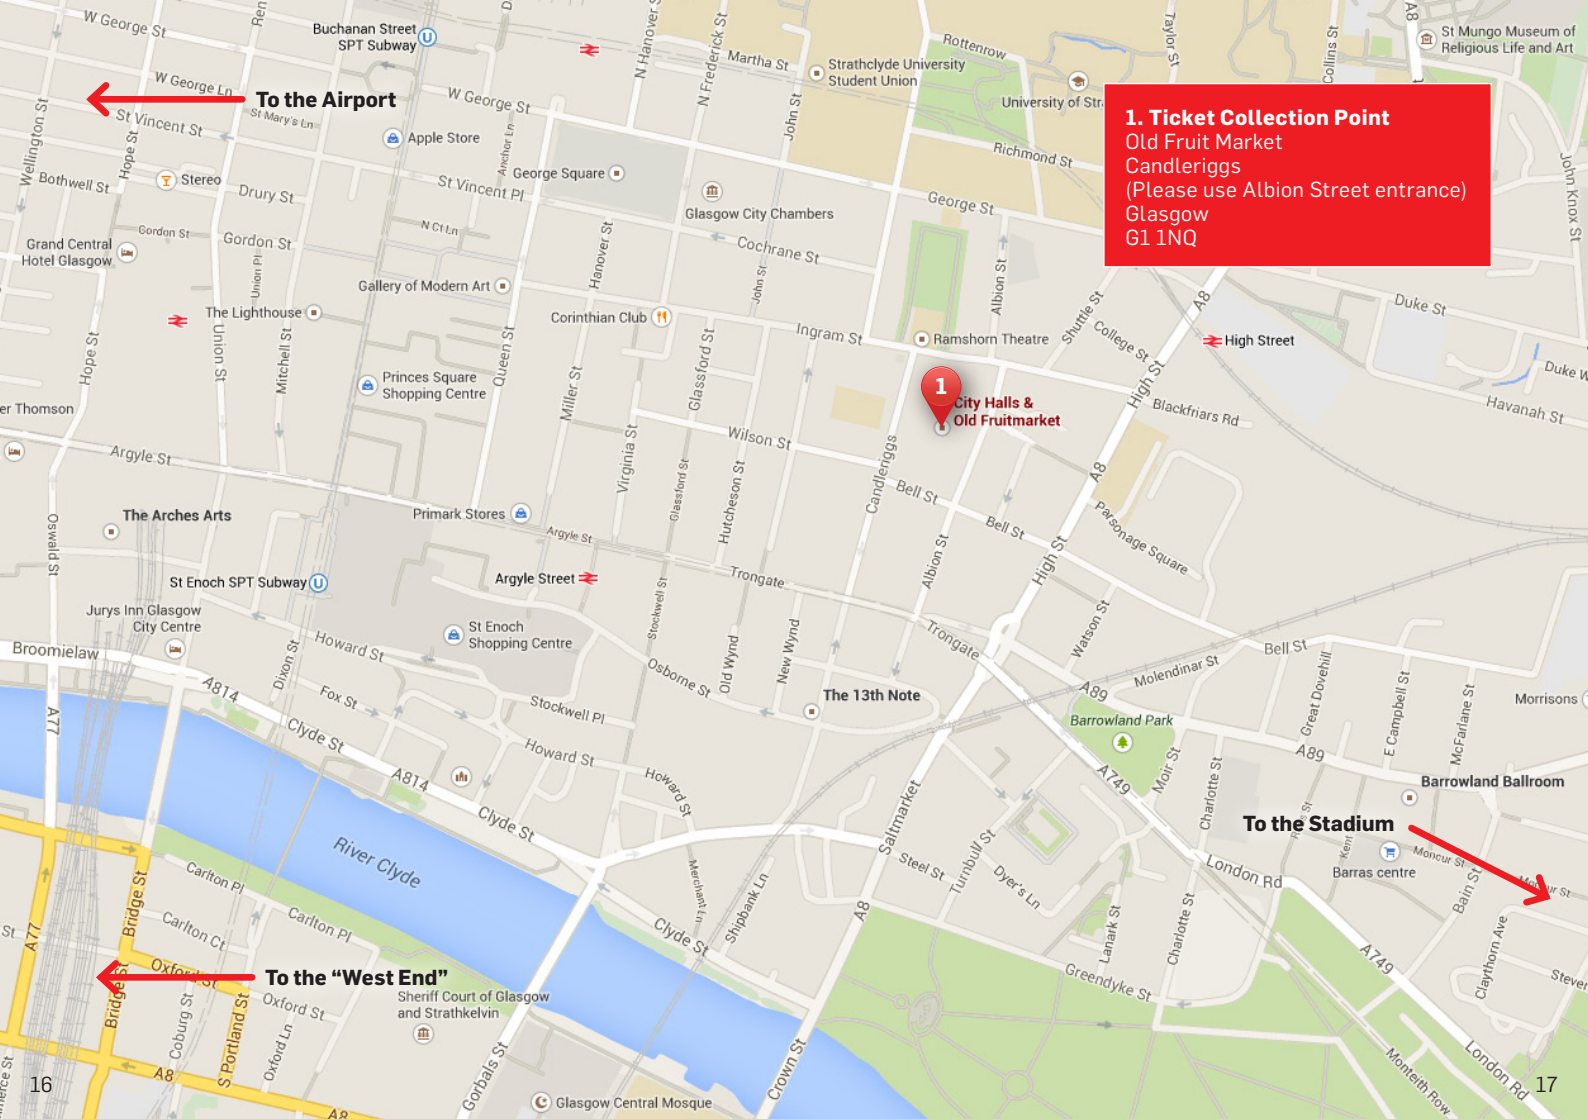

From Glasgow Queen Street, trains regularly depart for Bellgrove or Carntyne. The journey also takes 5 minutes but the walk to the stadium is slightly longer (20 to 30 minutes).

Car

The stadium lies on London Road. Exiting the M74 at Tollcross, and then following London Road west for almost 2 miles brings you to the stadium. Continuing on London Road further west brings you to Glasgow's city centre.

If coming from the M8, exit at junction 14, and drive down south on Alexandra Park Street until reaching London Road. Turn left onto London Road and follow until you reach the stadium on your left.
